PERSONS going out of town for the

this country by floods and fires during the past-ten days is greater perhaps than at any time in its history during the same period and reach the appalling total of about seventy million dollars.

THE INTELLIGENCER'S miserable and incompetent report of the Cox trial shows that paid attorneys make poor newspaper reporters.—Register.

It does nothing of the kind, for the INTELLIGENCER'S report is not made by "a paid attorney." The INTELLIGENCER's published brief accounts of the progress of the Cox trial because there was much in the evidence unfit for publication. The Register is welcome to all it can make by printing the disgusting details of slander suits and other trials which are notable principally for their sensational or vulgar features, and the INTELLIGENCER is content to pursue a different policy.

MUCH is being said about the comparative cost of an iron bridge and a stone arch and the peculiar argument in favor of the latter is urged that it would stand for an indefinite period and require no repairs, while the former would have to be rebuilt say at the end of twenty TORE Meditor of the Intelligence.

Sign:—We wonder, if abuttments were built on the same foundation as would be necessary for a stone bridge, at Main retreet, and in the new Union ralivoal bridge, then a first class steel or iron bridge, then a first class steel or iron bridge and a stone bridge, it would have been saved, and standing yet. Guess it would.

A good steel or iron bridge, at half the cost of a stone bridge, will do us for say one hundred years to come, and we will allow the fourth generation to take care of the maleves, in bridges as well as other materials. We can use $40,000 that would be wasted on a stone bridge to good advantage on our streets, or in paying interest on bonds we now have out. Let us let up on the "bond" business, and come down a little nearer to "pay as we go," Taxes are high enough now for most of us, and another loan of $75,000 means a further waste of $4,000 to $5,000 a means a further waste of $4,000 t no repairs, while the former would have to be rebuilt say at the end of twentyfive or thirty years at a great cost.

It is proposed to issue bonds in the amount of $75,000, bearing four and one half per cent interest per annum. Add to the principal the aggregate interest and what will your stone bridge cost you by the time the bonds mature in 1923? It is estimated by competent bridge builders that a steel bridge, with all the virtues and none of the objections of a stone structure, can be built for less than $25,000. Add to this the small amount of cost for repairs during the quarter of a century the bridge would last (granting that it would last only for that period), and the total amount will not approximate one-half the interest alone on the bonds for a stone bridge for the same length of time.

Stone or Steel?

There is one consideration which ought to enter into the decision whether ought to enter into the decision whether the bridge over the creek at Main street shall be of steel or a stone arch, which has not so far been generally regarded. With a stone bridge, the higher the water rises the narrower the waterway becomes, so that when there is a flood and the water is pouring down the valley as it did last July and August, the stone arch is an obstruction, and drift, loss arch is an obstruction, and drift, logs and all sorts of debris are liable to lodge against it, and if the structure withstands so tremendous a pressure, the water must seek some other outlet, and after being dammed there till it reaches the street level, will flood the streets adjacent.

A glance at this rude plan will more clearly convey the idea:

LOW WATER.
A steel bridge, on the contrary, offers a wider passage for the water the higher the flood rises, thus:

The alope of the piers is here exaggerated, but it still conveys the idea correctly. Not only is the stream unobstructed in time of floods, but the water way becomes wider and wider, and instead of the bridge forming a dam and increasing the damage by the flood, it The slope of the piers is here exaggives the water egress with greater facility at every foot of rise.

Legislative Nonsense, In an article under the above caption the Louisville Courier-Journal has something to say about the immigration laws, and much of it is to the point that B. recent legislation is ineffective and badly needs revision. The law was designed to exclude criminals and paupers, but about the only class rigidly excluded are those who, if admitted, would be excellent citizens. A short time ago, says the Journal, an Episcopal church having given a call to a gentleman from England, he was excluded by orders from the custom house authorities because he came under the designation of a "contract laborer," have a gentleman from England, he was excluded by orders from the custom house authorities because he came under the designation of a "contract laborer," having made a contract prior to his coming to this country to fill an Episcopal pulpit in New York.

The same ruling excluded an overseer employed by a Kentucky farmer, who came from Scotland. Now we have it announced that Mr. Hepburn, of the Treasury Department, has decided that the immigration of foreign professors under contract to teach in the Roman Catholic University in Washington would be clearly a violation of the alien contract law, and under this decision he excludes the Catholic professors.

Thus the law excludes educated and intelligent persons who would be of some service to others, and who are perfectly able to support themselves, but admits by the hundreds of thousands men and women who become a charge upon the public.

During the recent Mardi Gras celebration at New Orleans, a lady from Galveston while taking in the carnival, was not forgetful of the fact that it was near the time for the March drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, she invested $1$ in a lottery ticket, which she brought back, forgetting its possession. She discovered that she held one-twentieth of ticket No. 10,420, which drew the second capital prize of $100,000, thus entitling her to $5,000. The ticket was cashed in this city, being paid over to the representative of the fortunate lady.—Galceton (Tex.) News, April 2.

women who become a charge upon the public.

The necessity for some intelligent revision of the Immigration Law is admitted on all hands, but intelligent legislation seems to be the one thing that can not be obtained. The authorities, perhaps, have adopted the rule of General Grant, to rigidly enforce a bad law as the best means of securing its repeal, and the instances of the Episcopal clerymen and the Catholic professors should direct public attention anew to the general failure in legislation.
